

Printed by: 45bdcce471f5715@placeholder.17965.edu. Printing is for personal, private use only. No part of this book may be reproduced or transmitted without publisher's prior permission. Violators will be prosecuted.

The following sentences have errors and/or words, phrases or means of expression not acceptable for broadcast writing. Make them acceptable.

1. An unidentified man was hurt this morning when he was shot by robbers during a hold-up at Smith's Supermarket.
 2. Certiorari was granted today in the case of Smith v. Jones by the State Supreme Court.
 3. The superintendent of schools has stated that the air quality tests conducted in all of the districts 70 schools might be invalidated for 45 of the aforementioned schools.
 4. Extensive rebuilding, reconstruction and renovation is what the building inspector said would be required for the dilapidated and run down housing project.
 5. Last month the consumer price index took a 0.4% increase.
 6. Although the 2 females and 1 male were searched for by members of the police department, but the men in blue weren't able to locate them.
 7. The ruling by the state's highest supreme court has many local attorney's in the legal community here very displeased.
 8. The govenor has decided to dulcify his critics by reluming the capitol dome.
 9. The leader of Belize will travel to America to meet with members of Pres. Trump's administration over the new 6% import duty, according to the leader.
 10. Being that there were 3 robberies last night, the police decided to elevate the number of units that would be driving around the apparently endangered area.
- Record the first block of a radio or television newscast, and rewrite at least one story using fewer words and tighter phrasing – without sacrificing any important information.

